WORK PROJECT

For the Period: 9 September - 9 October 1947

The most authoritative representative of the working class and its most dynamic leader is the Rumanian Communist Party. It is burdened with numerous difficult tasks, particularly at the present moment when reconstruction of the country weighs heavily on the Party; but this constitutes at the same time a point of honor for it, thanks to the heroism with which the Party achieves the desired goal.

Among the tasks mentioned above, we cite the following as the most important:

1. The raising of Party members in cells to a level where they will produce work of a more professional and political caliber.
2. The uncovering and removal of hostile elements which have infiltrated the cells.
3. To support the new Trade Union Committee and assist it through participation in Trade Union sessions.
4. To summon comrades who show signs of backsliding in Party work to the Cell Bureau to be guided once more in the proper direction. In such cases, the organization will be notified.
5. Special attention will be paid to party groups.

6. To collaborate always with all other branches, and especially with the personnel section so that accurate records of members may be kept up to date.
7. The tightening up of discipline in Party and professional work.
8. The reinforcement of the indoctrination teams with dynamic and well trained comrades.
9. The compilation of a list of comrades, with comments by those who prepare them.
10. To see to it that no comrade in a cell has too many duties.

These being the tasks before us, and keeping in mind the specific aim of our work, the cell takes on the following obligations:

Planning of Work

In order to function effectively, to keep before us at all times a picture of the tasks accomplished and those still to be done, and to bring about a greater control, it is necessary that work should be planned, starting with each individual member and going on up to the Cell Bureau.

Control of Work

Work must be supervised, and such supervision of work within the Party must not be considered as a police control such as that of a chief towards his subordinates. This supervision will be carried out in two ways:

- a. Through oral and written reports.
- b. Through checking on the spot.

Two aims are followed in supervisory work:

- a. The checking of tasks accomplished.
- b. The directing and assisting of comrades in their work.

Attendance

We have undertaken to obtain a 90 percent attendance at group sessions and cell sessions by 10 October; absentees without excuses will be liquidated (sic).

Party Discipline

Every member of our cell will answer the roll call of the party without fail, cease being late to the sessions or to any other meetings to which the Party summons us. The order of the day will be respected at the sessions.

Arguments during meetings must be carried on in an orderly manner, each registering for his turn to speak.

Any report, hearing, or oral or written petition will be made only through channels.

Party Groups

The party line will be introduced to the masses and the problems and difficulties of the masses will be reported through the groups. The following will be discussed by the latter:

- a. All problems affecting comrades which they come up against in the course of their activity.
- b. Hostile elements within and outside the Party; concrete examples of the latter being precisely enumerated.

Growth of the Party

We shall each prepare and enroll a colleague by 10 October 1947. The work will be carried on collectively.

All cell members will pay their dues without waiting to be called upon to do so.
